RIGHTS OF THE DATA SUBJECT

The data subject has the right to obtain from the controller confirmation as to whether personal data concerning them is being processed; where that is the case, they have the right to access that personal data, insofar as this does not conflict with applicable regulations, including safeguarding the proper course of an investigation, and to the information referred to in Art. 15 GDPR. The data subject has the right to request that the controller promptly rectify inaccurate personal data concerning them and, where applicable, to have incomplete personal data completed (Art. 16 GDPR).

The data subject has the right to request that the controller erase personal data concerning them without undue delay, provided that one of the grounds set out in detail in Art. 17 GDPR applies, e.g., where the data is no longer needed for the purposes for which it was collected (right to erasure).

The data subject has the right to request that the controller restrict processing where one of the conditions listed in Art. 18 GDPR applies, e.g., where the data subject has objected to the processing – for the period during which the controller verifies the matter. The data subject has the right, at any time, to object – on grounds relating to their particular situation – to the processing of personal data concerning them. In such a case, the controller may no longer process the personal data unless it demonstrates compelling legitimate grounds for the processing which override the interests, rights, and freedoms of the data subject, or grounds for the establishment, exercise, or defense of legal claims (Art. 21 GDPR).

Without prejudice to any other administrative or judicial remedy, every data subject has the right to lodge a complaint with a supervisory authority if they consider that the processing of personal data concerning them infringes the GDPR (Art. 77 GDPR). The data subject may exercise this right before the supervisory authority, i.e.: the Personal Data Protection Office (UODO).
